

Finally I really began writing this thing. As you can see I went for a default(ish) start. I forgot to turn off Ironman but I don't really care about that too much.

This is the slice of the galaxy where I live and that is my starting research.

This will make a good colony center I can almost see the alloys flowing out of the planets

It appears that life used to exist on AZ-11-438 but was killed. I also got the Irassian Concordat for my precursors.
